She is a Data Scientist at Morocco's Tax Administration, with an engineering degree in Decision Support Systems from the National School of Computer Science and Systems Analysis (ENSIAS) and an Executive Master's degree in Big Data and Artificial Intelligence from the International University of Rabat.

With 14 years of professional experience, she currently serves as Head of the Statistical Production Unit, where she contributes to the production of fiscal statistics and to analytical work supporting revenue management and tax policy.

Her responsibilities cover fiscal statistics, tax expenditure, and tax revenue forecasting, including the production of key fiscal indicators, the monitoring of tax revenues in near real time, the analysis of tax declarations, and the preparation of revenue projections. She also conducts studies on tax revenue trends and Tax-to-GDP, providing analytical insights into the evolution of fiscal revenues and their macroeconomic context.

Her background combines data science, data engineering, business intelligence, and fiscal analysis, with a focus on developing data-driven approaches to strengthen the use of information within tax administration. She also serves as a focal point for cooperation with the OECD and the African Tax Administration Forum (ATAF) on tax administration, fiscal statistics, and analytical initiatives.
